Prosecution Witnesses in Speck Trial

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The prosecution has called two witnesses who placed Richard Speck in the Chicago neighborhood where eight nurses were murdered last July.

William Martin, the assistant state's attorney from Cook County, Monday recited the state's version of the night when an intruder bound and gagged eight girls, then led them off at intervals to be slaughtered.

Martin's statement was based on the story of Miss Corazon Amurao, 23, the exchange nurse from the Philippines who hid under a bed and was overlooked by the killer.

Gerald Getty, Cook County public defender representing Speck, attacked Miss Amurao's identification of Speck and labeled three fingerprints which the state says are Speck's as "smudges."

"The theory of the defense is that Speck is not the perpetrator of this crime," Getty, 53, said in his opening statement.

Getty said that Speck rented a room July 13 at a seaman's inn two miles from the scene of the murders, and slept in the room the night of the slayings.

The courtroom, jammed with 80 newsmen and spectators, was silent as Martin related how Miss Amurao answered a knock on her bedroom door at 11 p.m. July 13, and confronted the killer.

The prosecutor stood motionless in front of the jury box and described how the nurse watched the killer drag her seven roommates to their deaths in other rooms of the dormitory and listened as he raped his final victim.

At the conclusion of his presentation, Martin, 30, told the jury of seven men and five women, "We will ask you to find Richard Franklin Speck guilty of those eight murders and to fix his punishment at death."

The state called its first three

British Star Weds Actor

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
NEW YORK (AP) — Lynn Redgrave, tall and blonde British actress, and actor John Clark, once a child star in Britain, were married.

The bride, 23, nominated for an Academy Award for her role as the awkward and gangling "Georgy Girl," was attended by her actress sister, Vanessa, also nominated for an Oscar.

Sir Michael Redgrave and Rachel Kempson, famous British actors, flew from London for the first marriage of their daughter.

The bridegroom, 34, was divorced two weeks ago in Mexico from his first wife, Canadian actress Kay Hawtrey. He has just left the cast of "Macbird," an off-Broadway play.

Samuel Mazzone, chief cartographer for Chicago, testified as to the location of several structures connected with the case.

Dante Bargellini of Chicago, a merchant seaman, told the court that on July 12 he drove the 25-year-old defendant to a ship anchored in Calumet harbor where Speck believed he would find employment.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bettel

THE PIN-UP KID

Dear Helen: My boyfriend is a freshman in college, and he came home for spring vacation with some stuff that made my parents flip. He has a black sweat-shirt and he's used household bleach to bring the words, "Repent Now!" on the back. All over it he has buttons, like "To Be or Not To Be," "Revive Fertility Rites," "The Rebellion needs YOU!" "Be a Tanked Tiger," "War is Good Business, Invest Your Son," "Abolish Finals," "Save Water, Shower with a Friend."

He collects bumper stickers too, like "This Car Powered by a Thousand Lazy Dwarfs," and less printable ones. He thinks they're funny and he's not "protesting" anything except boredom maybe, but my folks think he's subversive.

What do you think? - COLLEGE GUY'S GIRL

Dear CGG: I think the kid is funny, if slogans aren't carried too far. It's also a good way to get "protest" out of your system without breaking rules - if protest is what you have in mind.

So long as your B.F. doesn't wear his button-down sweatshirt when he takes you out to dinner, your parents should smile, instead of flip. - H.

Dear Helen: I am very much in love with my ex-steady-of-recent. I know the difference between "love" and infatuation, and I possess the former for this girl.

Nowadays I smoke nine packs of cigarettes a week, where before I was always temperate. I am afraid that this will incline my marks downward which would be catastrophic for a future doctor. I must go back with her, but how? - N.F.M.

Dear N: Come out from behind that smoke screen and work to get your steady back. Could be a minor apology would do the trick. - H.

P. S. A future doctor should know that nine packs a week might lead to a short career - or don't you read the message on the label? - H.

Dear Helen: I am a girl of 11. There is a boy in my room who is just dreamy. I give him candy and lend him money by the bundles. He doesn't pay back. Yesterday, he offered me a stick of gum.

Do you think he likes me, or what am I doing wrong? - C.C.

Dear C: Give him nothing but a pleasant smile. Whether you're 11 or six-times-11, honey, you can't bribe a male into liking you. Don't try - ever! - H.

Dear Helen: I'd like to answer the letter from the girl who complained that her parents won't let her grow up. I used to have that trouble, until I realized that I had never tried to prove I was getting mature. I solved my problem by sitting down and visiting with my mother every chance I got. I'd tell her about the boys I liked, how I felt about dating, life, etc. It worked.

I've proved to my parents that I have young-adult views and can be trusted. Our relationship is now closer than I ever dreamed it could be. If kids would just see parents as humans and talk to them as good friends, they'd be surprised how fast they'd become good friends. - M.L.

Dear Helen: When I went with my fiancé to pick out an engagement ring, I chose a ruby instead of a diamond. My folks said I was making a public spectacle of myself with this choice. Just because diamonds are the custom, must I conform? - CONCERNED

Dear Con: If you and your fiancé like your ruby engagement ring, it's nobody's business but your own. Many girls are deciding for stones other than diamonds these days. - H.

Yankees Beset by Injuries

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The New York Yankees' recent Caribbean hop does not appear destined to go down as one of the more successful island excursions of all time.

For one thing, the Yanks won only one of the three games they played in the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico over the weekend. For another, the medical after-effects of the trip were staggering.

Back at their spring training base in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Monday, the Yankees discovered that outfielder Lou Clinton and infielder Charley Smith were lost for up to three weeks because of injuries suffered in the islands.

It was shown that Clinton, hit by a pitch, had fractured a thumb and Smith had suffered a shoulder separation when he dove after a line drive.

The Yankees picked up John Kennedy in a trade with Los Angeles and named the good-field, no-hit infielder their starting shortstop. Pitcher Jack Cullen, outfielder-first baseman John Miller and about $25,000 went to the Dodgers, who also got infielder-outfielder Roy White on a one-year loan for their Spokane farm club.

The Yankees lost to Washington 7-2 Monday night as Jim Bouton was cuffed for six hits, five walks and committed a wild pitch. Dick Howser also made two errors, leading to more Washington runs.

Willie Stargell pinch hit a two-run homer with two out in the ninth, sending the Pirates to a 4-2 triumph over Kansas City. Bob Veale turned in a strong pitching job, giving up just one run in eight innings.

Guan Marichal gave up just two hits in six innings and Bill Stargell singled in the winning run in the 11th inning for a 5-4 San Francisco victory over Cleveland. Five straight walks in the ninth by Steve Bailey allowed the Giants to tie the score.

Jack Hamilton and Bill Denney combined to limit the Chicago White Sox to two hits and the New York Mets won 4-1. The Mets scored three times in the first inning, which was highlighted by doubles by Cleon Jones and Johnny Lewis.

Rico Carty drove in two runs with a double in the sixth inning, lifting Atlanta to a 2-1 decision over Philadelphia. Deron Johnson drove in four runs with two singles and a double, powering Cincinnati to a 6-4 triumph over Detroit.

Orlando Cepeda drove in a run and scored two others and Mike Shannon had three hits as St. Louis pounded Minnesota 6-1. Harmon Killebrew hit his seventh home run of the spring for the Twins. Ted Savage connected for the Cardinals.

An error by shortstop Lee Bates in the fifth inning allowed the tie-breaking run to cross the plate and Los Angeles beat Houston 4-2.

To Withhold Entries in Aqueduct

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Horse owners and trainers have started their stretch run for bigger purses at Aqueduct race track by agreeing to withhold entries indefinitely starting Wednesday, which most likely would close the Big A.

Some 300 members of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association decided on the action in retaliation against the state legislature's failure to give them an additional one-half of one per cent — about $3.5 million — of the handle for purses.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and the State Senate had approved the increase, but the Assembly shocked horsemen by letting the measure die Sunday in committee when the legislature adjourned for the year.

As a result, the HBPA, in its meeting Monday, not only voted the boycott, but raised their request to their original bid of one per cent.

The owners and trainers, who comprise the association, say the state realized about $77 million in tax revenues, the largest amount of any state, from thoroughbred tracks last season and New York's present 2.35 per cent for purses is the smallest in the country.

Aqueduct, which seats about 70,000 persons, is one of the nation's largest tracks with an average weekday handle of about $2.5 million.

"I have to feel that the state will find a way to help us, and to help the state itself as well," said Jack Dreyfus, Wall Street financier, owner of Hobau Farm and temporary president of the association and chairman of the purse committee.

Soccer Poses no Threat to Baseball

BOSTON (AP) — As far as American League President Joe Cronin is concerned, professional soccer poses no threat to baseball as an attraction in the United States.

"Soccer fans are soccer fans and baseball fans are baseball fans," Cronin said. "I don't think we have anything to worry about."

Cronin fielded queries about major league club owners sponsoring teams in new pro soccer leagues at his annual luncheon for Boston baseball writers Monday.

"The baseball teams involved don't seem to be concerned about soccer hurting baseball," he said. "The soccer schedules are being arranged to avoid interference with baseball in the ball parks."

Asked if the promotion of soccer by baseball clubs is not a direct conflict of interest, Cronin replied:

"There may be. I haven't actually looked into it. However, as far as I'm concerned soccer games right now are only exhibitions. And an owner of a ball park has the right to put on exhibitions. They can control exhibitions."

"And as far as the owners' principal interests are concerned, I'm sure that if there are any good soccer players who can play major league baseball the baseball owners will jump in and sign them."

In the baseball department, Cronin was as optimistic and enthusiastic as ever in looking ahead to the American League pennant race. He predicted the Baltimore Orioles had a fight to repeat as champions.

Sportsmen Told Minnows to Cost More

By AL SCHAY
Associated Press Writer
LONOKE, Ark. (AP) — If Arkansas fishermen expect to continue getting an abundant supply of one of the state's most exported products—minnows—they're going to have to dig deeper into their pockets.

That's the prediction of some of the men who grow more than $5 million worth of minnows a year.

Already there have been scattered complaints from state fishermen about difficulty in finding minnows.

"Arkansas is short of minnows because of low prices," one grower said. "I can sell them (to dealers) for two to three times more in other states."

Roy Prewitt of Lonoke, chairman of the board of the American Fish Farmers Federation and a member of the American Fisheries Advisory Committee, said that at least 90 per cent of Arkansas' minnow production goes to other states.

This includes not only the neighboring states such as Texas and Louisiana, but also such far away places as New York, Ohio and Michigan.

"The growers and the public need to know that it's going to get worse before it gets better," Prewitt said. "The fishermen are going to have to get prices up to get more people into production (of minnows)," he said.

Working against a wholesale expansion of the minnow growing industry, he said, is the lack of suitable land and the competition for its use.

"There is not much of that land you can get your hands on," Prewitt said.

Ideally, fish raising needs flat land with an economical water supply and with a mild climate. Competing for the same kind of land are those who want to grow soybeans, rice and a newcomer to the flatlands line of entrepreneur, the channel catfish grower.

"We have a big shortage now, and it gets worse every year," said Prewitt, who raises minnows on 200 acres.

I. F. Anderson, also of Lonoke, is said to operate the world's largest minnow farm—nearly 5,000 acres. About 99 per cent of his 1 million pounds a year is exported, he said. Since he's in the business of selling fish, Anderson said, he's going to sell where the best markets are, and that's outside of Arkansas. He said he gets $2 to $3 a pound for minnows outside the state, compared to about $1 or lower in Arkansas.

Mayo Martin of Stuttgart, a federal extension biologist, said "bulldozers are running every day" building new ponds for fish growers.

Martin estimates there are about 14,000 acres in Arkansas devoted to minnow farming, with about 10,000 in the Lonoke area. The growers average 250 to 300 pounds of fish per year per acre, he said, with 1,000 smaller minnows weighing 3 to 4 pounds.

Thus a man growing small minnows on 100 acres, averaging 300 pounds per acre, would produce around 7.5 million a year.

Kermit Snead, director of the federal warm water fish culture laboratory, said other states are looking to Arkansas for minnows. He said a number of Arkansas fish farmers had sold their entire crops on consignment last fall.

Martin and others attributed the increase in demand for minnows to a number of things—more federal lakes, more fishing because of more leisure time and better roads leading to fishing areas.

One reason there isn't more production, content some of the larger operators, is that several fish farmers competed with each other to get the price down—thus making expansions less desirable.

Arkansas is still well ahead of its neighboring states in acreage devoted to minnow growing, however. Closest to Arkansas' 14,000-acre figure, Martin said, is Missouri with about 3,500 acres.

are any good soccer players who can play major league baseball the baseball owners will jump in and sign them."

In the baseball department, Cronin was as optimistic and enthusiastic as ever in looking ahead to the American League pennant race. He predicted the Baltimore Orioles had a fight to repeat as champions.

"The Orioles appear more set than any other club in the league, but whether they'll step right out I don't know."

Injuries All in Way for the Orioles

BALTIMORE ORIOLES
By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The nine other teams in the American League couldn't keep the Baltimore Orioles from winning the pennant last year, and if anything is going to keep them from it this year, it could be a shoulder and a couple of elbows.

The shoulder belongs to right-handed pitcher Jim Palmer and the elbows are the right of Wally Bunker and the left of Steve Barber. Collectively and individually, they represent the Orioles' only, but major, problem for the 1967 season.

The Orioles had the problem last season, but by the time it cropped up they had built a big enough margin to get them through the adversity. This year could be different.

Barber, a 28-year-old southpaw, won 10 games before the All-Star break in 1966 but then suffered tendonitis in his elbow and didn't win another game.

The 22-year-old Bunker also was afflicted by tendonitis and was on the disabled list for three weeks.

Palmer, 21, was the team's big winner, with 15 victories, despite a sore right shoulder in September.

Of the three, Bunker is providing the most optimism for the Orioles this spring, Palmer a little less and Barber the least.

"Bunker has been doing very well," said Harry Dalton, director of playing personnel. "His arm feels a little better each time out. Palmer hasn't pitched too much, but he feels better each time and his shoulder muscles are stretching out."

"Barber's arm hasn't hurt, and there's no swelling in the elbow, but he's still a question mark."

Actually, the Orioles are so encouraged by Bunker's progress that they're counting on him as one of the definite starters along with Dave McNally and Tom Phoebus.

They naturally hope that Palmer and Barber also will be ready to take their regular turns by the start of the season, but if they're not, Frank Bertaina, John Miller and possibly Gene Brubaker are set to step in.

Behind those starters stands one of the best bullpen crews in the league. The group includes Stu Miller, Eddie Fisher, Moe Drabowsky and Eddie Watt.

The rest of the team is set with all of the regulars back from last year which the Orioles climaxed by taking four straight from Los Angeles in the World Series.

Boog Powell is at first, Dave Johnson at second, Luis Aparicio at short, Brooks Robinson at third and Andy Etchebarren behind the plate. Frank Robinson, the Triple Crown winner and Most Valuable Player, is in right, Paul Blair in center and Curt Blefary in left.

Robinson underwent knee surgery during the winter but doesn't expect the operation to have any after effects.

Manager Hank Bauer gave Mike Epstein, the widely heralded rookie, a chance to beat out Blefary in left, but the 1965 Rookie of the Year apparently is staging a successful fight to keep his job.

Beman Sees Pressures on Amateurs

By RON SPEER
Associated Press Sports Writer
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Amateurs are capable of winning the Masters but the pressure and the tournament's timing help stack the cards against them, says Deane Beman, two-time national amateur champion.

"It's definitely possible for an amateur to win the Masters," the little Bethesda, Md., insurance executive contended Monday. "But it's not probable."

"When the heat is on, everybody chokes," Beman added after tuning up for Thursday's opening round of the prestigious Masters, where he heads a classy field of amateurs challenging such pros as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper in the 83-man international field.

"All of us amateurs would like to win the Masters, probably more than any other tournament," Beman said.

"There are probably only three or four amateurs in the tournament who can play good enough to win, and there are about 70 pros, so the odds are 20-1 against us right off."

"With the Masters held this early in the year, most of the amateurs haven't had time yet to play much golf, while most of the pros have been on the winter tour."

"I come into the tournament believing I can win it, and it's possible for an amateur to win. Probably none of us will, but I hope that an amateur can get close, at least."

Last challenge for the title by an amateur was in 1961 when Oklahoma oilman Charlie Coe tied for second. Ken Venturi, now a pro, had an eight-stroke lead going into the final round as an amateur in 1956 but lost by a stroke to Jack Burke Jr.

Playing in his fourth tournament of the year, Beman heads an amateur field that is one of the Masters' best.

Also hoping to beat out the pros are Canadian Gary Cowan, the reigning U.S. amateur champion; British Open champion Bobby Cole of South Africa, an 18-year-old phenom; and Ron Cerrudo, muscular, 22-year-old San Jose State grad considered a top pro prospect. Cerrudo has had a 66 in practice.

Wills told new shoes are illegal

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Maury Wills, an acknowledged base thief, has been notified his new-style baseball shoes are illegal.

Warren Giles, National League president, ordered Wills, who has stolen nine bases in nine tries this spring, to change his shoes by opening day.

Giles' order, revealed Monday, did not cite any reasons.

Wills changed his spring shoes that resemble track shoes. The traditional baseball shoe's spikes are triangular, but on Wills' new shoes the spikes are straight and blunt.

"I don't see anything wrong with the shoes," said Wills. "If a ball club wets down an infield to hamper the faster men in the league, nobody says that's illegal. I'm just trying to help myself."

Wills, Pittsburgh Pirate third baseman, stole a record 104 bases in 1962 while playing with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

He said Ron Fairly of Los Angeles wears the same type. Wills disagreed with some people who said the spikes on the new-style shoes are dangerous.

"The end of the spike is blunt," he said. "The other type spike has sharper ends. Besides, nobody in baseball purposely tries to spike another fellow."

Hawks Also Capture the Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawks, who finished first in the National Hockey League, also captured most of the individual honors with scoring champion Stan Mikita leading the way.

Mikita left little doubt about winning when he pulled far ahead midway through the season and finished with 97 points, tying the record set by teammate Bobby Hull last year. His third scoring championship was worth $1,750 to Mikita — $1,000 that goes with the Art Ross Trophy for the scoring title, $500 for leading the NHL in the first half of the season and $250 for being runner-up in the second half.

Mikita had 35 goals and 62 assists, the latter breaking his own record of 59.

Hull won $500 by edging Mikita, 46 points to 44, in the second half of the season and added another $500 as over-all runner-up to Mikita with 80 points on 52 goals and 28 assists. The 52 goals, tops in the league, put Hull above the coveted 50 mark for the third time.

Pierre Pilote of the Black Hawks tied for the second time a record for assists by a defenseman with 46.

Glenn Hall and Denis DeJordy of Chicago won the Vezina Trophy that goes to the goalie or goalies for the team which allows the fewest goals.

Fullmer Hands Hopkins His First Loss

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Don Fullmer, the World Boxing Association's No. 1-ranked, middleweight, handed light-heavyweight Joe Hopkins his first professional boxing loss Monday night at Salt Lake City.

Referee Ken Shulsen named Fullmer the winner at 1:09 of the sixth round.

Neither fighter had been knocked down, although Fullmer said he sprained his ankle after nearly going down in the third round.

Hopkins had won six straight fights before encountering Fullmer in a match sanctioned by the Utah Boxing Commission.

Hopkins weighed 167½ and Fullmer-163½ for the bout.

If you read the papers, you know how great our new Buick GS-400 is. (It's the one in the background.) And you also know you don't get a GS-400 for peanuts. It's a great car. But it's just a little rich for some people. So we set to work and designed the GS-340. It has a smaller engine (but the whole machine weighs less). Its interior is clean and simple and tasteful. And it has its own ornamentation, paint job, the rally stripe and hood scoops, and, of course, all the GS safety features. So now you have a car that costs less than the GS-400, but one with its own special brand of excitement. How can you beat that kind of a combination?

Ford Plans to Enter at LeMans

By F.T. MACFEELY
SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — With Ford shaking off months of frustration over its J car, a battle royal for the world sports car championship is in prospect, the next showdown coming in the 24-hour race at Le Mans, France, June 10-11.

"There is no more J car," driver Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., declared with emphasis after he and New Zealand's Bruce McLaren won the 12-hour Sebring sports car race Saturday night.

"This is the Ford Mark IV," Andretti said. "It is a great improvement."

Ford wrested the world title from Ferrari last year with its Mark II, but nothing stands still in big time sports car racing.

Enzo Ferrari, the Italian genius, came out with a new 12-cylinder P4 this year and began the 1967 season in February with a 1-2-3 sweep in the Daytona Continental while six Ford Mark II's suffered an embarrassing series of breakdowns.

Ford wasn't ready then with its new J car. It hadn't lived up to expectations and chief driver Ken Miles had been killed testing it.

Finally, in its racing debut here, it had a new streamlined body, mechanical revisions and a new name.

It was ready. Andretti, the hottest American driver of 1967, and the super-skilled McLaren covered a record 238 laps of 5.2 miles each — 10 more than Miles and Lloyd Ruby of Wichita Falls, Tex., drove in winning in 1966 — and boosted the record speed nearly five miles an hour to 102.923.

The only major challenger was a Texas-built Chevrolet-powered Chaparral which Mike Spence of England drove to a lap record 111.032 m.p.h. before a differential seal broke and eliminated it, halfway through the endurance test.

Ferrari passed up Sebring, possibly because of a lawsuit based on an accident killing four spectators last year. A Ferrari was involved in the wreck although it was not the death car.

CHANCE TO HIT IT BIG

Arnie, Iron Man Have Broken Up

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — One of golf's most successful corporations — Arnie and Iron Man — has broken up after 14 years, and it's a mystery what brought on the split.

There are explanations on both sides and in the caddy shop, but the general feeling is that Arnold Palmer, the four-time Masters champion, wanted a change and got it.

"I just didn't get here in time," said Nathaniel Avery, known as Iron Man, who has been carrying Arnie's clubs here since Palmer was an amateur and collecting tips reaching into four figures.

"I showed up last week and Iron Man wasn't here, so I got another caddy," Palmer explained. "He's a good boy, I like him, so I decided to stay with him."

Palmer's new caddy is Charlie Reynolds, a slender, mustachioed professional bag-carrier of 24 who has been caddying at Augusta since he was 16.

He is the father of three children. He is soft-spoken and mild but brimming with confidence over his new boss.

"We're gonna win," said Reynolds. "Mr. Palmer is really hitting that rock. We're sure to win."

Iron Man, a barnstorming caddy who spends the winters in the New York area, drew Ray Floyd, one of the younger pros.

It was Iron Man, who in describing Palmer's fabulous charges said:

"You can tell when that man is going to move. He jerks at his glove, hitches his trousers, starts walking fast and says, 'The game is on.'"

Reynolds, who has caddied for Billy Maxwell, Johnny Pott and Doug Sanders, among others, says he is thrilled to get Palmer's bag.

"It was just luck," Charlie said. "When I heard Iron Man was in New York I asked for Mr. Palmer's bag. I got it."

Palmer came to Augusta early last week for practice before going to the Greater Greensboro Open, Iron Man wasn't expecting him so soon and wasn't around, Reynolds got the job.

Now it's his for the tournament, at least — maybe as long as Palmer plays in the Masters. It's the players' choice.

Cheating Uncle Sam

Question: what is the difference between tax evasion and tax avoidance?
Answer: five years in the penitentiary.

This old joke is often used by lawyers to illustrate a basic principle of income tax law—that, although evading taxes is illegal, avoiding taxes is not.

In fact, avoiding taxes is not only legal in a technical sense but perfectly ethical as well. Judge Learned Hand once put it this way: "There is nothing sinister in so arranging one's affairs as to keep taxes as low as possible. Everybody does so, rich or poor; and all do right, for nobody owes any public duty to pay more than the law demands. Taxes are enforced exactions, not voluntary contributions."

Thus, the law itself suggests various ways of saving taxes: by splitting income between husband and wife, by investing in tax-exempt bonds, by using an accelerated rate of depreciation on property.

Of course, even the honest person may be tempted to venture close to the dividing line between avoidance and evasion. But outright skulduggery is relatively rare. The Internal Revenue Service says that 95% of all returns are completely honest.

Perhaps some citizens, at least, share the sentiments of Oliver Wendell Holmes, who said: "I like to pay taxes. With them I buy civilization."

NOTICE OF SCHOOL DESEGREGATION PLAN

Mineral Springs School District No. 3 (called "Mineral Springs") and Saratoga School District No. 11 (called "Saratoga") hereby give notice that their schools are being desegregated under a plan approved by the United States District Court. The plan is a freedom of choice procedure and all students may choose any school at the applicable level in their District and may choose the school formerly operated by Howard County Training School District No. 38 (called "Howard County Training School"), which school facilities have been taken over and are being operated by Saratoga. In other words, any student, regardless of race, residing in the Mineral Springs District may choose any school in the Mineral Springs District or may choose the Howard County Training School. All grades are being desegregated in 1967, and a choice must be made for each student.

The choice period for 1967 will commence on April 1, 1967 and end on April 30, 1967. On the first day of the choice period, an explanatory notice and a choice form will be distributed to the parent, or adult acting as parent, of each student. Once a choice is made and the choice period has expired, the choice is binding for the next school year.

No student will be denied his choice unless for reasons of overcrowding, in which case students nearest the school will have preference. Transportation will be provided, if possible, no matter what school is chosen.

Officials, teachers and employees of the school system shall not influence any parent, or adult person serving as a parent, or any student in the exercise of a choice, or favor or penalize any person because of a choice made. Injunction May Stop Clay Fight

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit boxing promoter threatened to seek a court injunction today to prevent heavyweight champion Cassius Clay from defending his title against Floyd Patterson in Las Vegas, Nev.

Mrs. Jean Wilson, head of E and J Sports Club, said the club's attorney, Eddie D. Smith, would ask federal court today to stop the fight from being held anywhere but in Detroit.

Clay, 25, and Patterson, 32, the former heavyweight champion, had been negotiating with E and J to stage the fight in Detroit.

But an authoritative source told The Associated Press Monday night that negotiations fell through and Clay's managers decided to take the bout to Las Vegas.

"We feel that there is some sort of conspiracy," said Mrs. Wilson. "We feel that Mr. Muhammad Ali's camp interfered with our completing a contract with Mr. Patterson."

Clay, who prefers to be called Muhammad Ali, his Muslim name, stopped Patterson in 12 rounds at Las Vegas, Nov. 22, 1965. Clay's last title defense was March 22 when he knocked out Zora Folley in the seventh round at Madison Square Garden in New York.

The New York source said the Las Vegas fight would be shown on closed-circuit television in the United States and Canada and would be beamed via satellites to Japan and parts of Europe.

It would be Clay's 10th title defense and his eighth in the last 13 months.

Multiple Sclerosis Is Not Always Crippling

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Do patients with multiple sclerosis have pain? How long does one have it before being crippled with it?

A—Rather than pain, numbness is often a symptom of multiple sclerosis. The course and severity of the disease is extremely varied. Although no cure is known, some victims have long periods in which they are free or nearly free of symptoms. Many are never crippled with it even though they have it for many years—others may become severely crippled within a few months.

Q—My wife is confined to bed with multiple sclerosis.
She has an open sore at the end of her spine. What causes this and what can be done for

A—Bed sores or pressure sores may occur in anyone who is confined to bed for a long time. The best treatment would be the use of a special mattress to equalize the pressure of the body on all parts, and known as total flotation therapy.

Q—My sister, 56, has multiple sclerosis and is confined to a wheel chair. Where can I get some information about this disease?

A—Excellent pamphlets on home care and other aspects of this disease can be had by writing to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society (257
Park Ave. South, New York, N.Y. 10010). They can also tell you the location of the nearest chapter to your home.

Q—Is it possible to develop adhesions in the abdomen following a severe contusion incurred in an auto accident?

A—Adhesions are a growing together of cut surfaces following an operation or inflamed surfaces associated with an infection. It would be rare but not impossible for adhesions to form following a contusion that bruised the lining of some abdominal organs. In any case, the ad-hesions would not cause any trouble unless they resulted in an intestinal obstruction.

Q—How many different diseases are there?

A—This is something like asking how many different tunes there are in the world.
Some doctors get around this one by stating that there are no diseases—just sick people.
If some of them seem to have certain features in common, these features may be used as a guide to possible lines of treatment but in the practice of medicine there are few, if any, infallible rules. The exceptions keep us on our guard and keep us from getting bored with our work.

icated, will be directed at the methods of police who allowed Miss Corazon Amurao, 23, an exchange nurse from the Philippines, to identify Speck, 25, in his hospital room after his arrest July 17. Getty's defense team also will challenge a photographic identification of Speck, Miss Amurao's first description of his haircut and police artist's drawing of him, and then move to cast doubt on the validity of fingerprint evidence.

Getty's repeated remark that "there may be other verdicts here," is an apparent indication that he may try to obtain a verdict of innocent by reason of insanity if other tactics fail.

In other moves Getty has asked Judge Herbert C. Pachen to suppress as evidence a gun and a knife linked by police to Speck. In his motion to suppress fingerprints found in the Chicago townhouse shared by the eight victims and Miss Am-urao, he has said they were too blurred to convict a man of murder.

CLASSES AT WARDROBE
LONDON (AP)—Sundays school classes for adults, run on the lines of university seminars, have been started at the London
City Church of St. Andrew-by-the-Wardrobe.

"As it is particularly hoped to secure the attendance of those who have never shared, or have lapsed from, the Christian faith, the sittings will be held without prayers in order that no one need feel embarrassed," explained Ivor Bulmer-Thomas, church warden. The church takes its curious name from its past proximity to the royal clothing store.

Dual Defense Expected in Speck Trial

Needed Trick In Spade Suit

South's six heart call is a substantial overbid. You would have simply signed off at four hearts after your partner's negative two no-trump response. Or would you? Most players tend to overbid their very good hands and you may have reached a slam on bidding along the lines shown in the box.

It is really important to make 12 tricks if you are in a slam. It still pays to make 12 tricks if you have stopped at four or five.

West opens the queen of clubs. How do you go about getting that twelfth trick? Note that it can only come in clubs or in spades and that it will take a miracle for it to come in clubs. It won't take a miracle for it to come in spades. You see that dummy holds five spades. You hold one so that one opponent may hold three and the other four. Then dummy's fifth spade is a potential trick.

You must decide to work on the spade suit. Can you afford to draw trumps first? No! You need every one of dummy's trumps as an entry. You win the first trick in your own hand. You also need dummy's king of clubs as an entry.

You lead a spade. An opponent wins and leads a club to dummy's king. You ruff a spade and must be careful to ruff it with a high trump. You need all your low trumps to get to dummy. From now on it is duck soup. You lead a trump to dummy's eight, ruff another spade high, lead a trump to dummy's nine, ruff one more spade high, lead a trump to dummy's ten. Discard your

No Progress in Strike of Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists asked fellow craft unions today to respect its picket lines and for the first time urged cameramen, stagehands and other employees to stay away from their jobs at the three major networks.

The technicians, who with supervisory personnel have maintained national programming since the AFTRA performers strike began a week ago, gave no clear response to the appeal. It came Monday from Donald F. Conaway, national executive secretary of AFTRA, after the breakdown of talks at Washington between the union and ABC, NBC and CBS. Returning to New York, Conaway said negotiations had reached an impasse and that "the ball is in management's court now."

"We will urge everyone in radio and television to respect our picket lines," he said. No direct negotiations were scheduled. Federal mediator William E. Smith said he would call the parties back to Washington as soon as there was an indication that progress could be made.

At issue is a wage offer that Conaway called "insulting" and a "backward movement." A network spokesman said it was a reduction in basic salary, but he said an increase in fees would keep the money package at the same level.

Conaway charged the networks had sliced $25 off an original offer of $300-a-week basic wages. The 18,000-member union is seeking base pay of $325 a week and a higher percentage of commercial fees for about 100 local newscasters at network-owned stations.

The seven-day-old strike's personality issue — newscaster Chet Huntley's decision to cross picket lines while his NBC teammate David Brinkley respects them — added a new chapter Monday.

"Chet is doing what he thinks is right," Brinkley said in Chicago where both newsmen accepted awards from the National Association of Broadcasters. "And I'm doing what I think is right. He hasn't asked me to support his stand."

"I'll go back to work when the strike is over," he added. Brinkley gave his partner a "good morning, Chet" as he mounted the rostrum to make his acceptance speech, then cracked, "I am usually unable to say anything at all until I've heard a commercial."

Huntley, an AFTRA member, has argued that the union gives inadequate representation to newsmen and is concerned mainly with "singers, actors, jugglers, entertainers and comedians whose problems have no relation to ours."

ALBEE AS ADAPTER
NEW YORK (AP) — The next probable Broadway exhibit of author Edward Albee will be an adaptation of "Everything in the Garden," a British satire.

Albee's assignment is Americanization of the locale and dialogue. The comedy is about a suburban couple who live beyond their means.

Three of Albee's short plays which won him first attention are to be part of another White Way project next fall. They are "The American Dream," "The Zoo Story" and "The Death of Bessie Smith."

Thant Places Peace Burden on the U.S.

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — U Thant persists in placing the burden for peace in Vietnam on the United States. This puts him back where he started. And where he started got him no place.

The United Nations secretary-general's ideas for bringing about peace were ignored and repudiated by the North Vietnamese and he reacted by making the one-sided demand that the United States, not North Vietnam, make the first concessions.

He had offered two peace plans, one recently. The North Vietnamese rejected the first and apparently rejected the second. Now Thant is adding to and changing his second plan.

This indicates Thant either failed to think his plan through or failed to state it fully.

Many months ago he produced a three-part plan: A halt to U.S. bombing of North Vietnam; a de-escalation of the fighting by all sides; then negotiations by all sides. Hanoi rejected this.

It called for a permanent halt in the bombing, unconditionally. But the United States had halted the bombing several times, hoping for some response from Hanoi to indicate it was interested in peace. There was no response.

President Johnson took this position: No halt in the bombing unless North Vietnam was willing to scale down the fighting on its side, too, for otherwise it would mean one-sided American concessions while Americans got killed.

Last December, for the second time in 1966, the United States asked Thant to do what he could to bring peace. Then last month he revealed he had made a second proposal to both sides in the fighting.

As he presented it, this looked like enough of a modification of his first plan to look like a big change. He didn't present a halt in U.S. bombing as a first step

Cub Scouts Hold Program

In this second plan.

This is what he proposed: A truce, then negotiations by both sides, then an international conference. If Hanoi answered Thant directly on this, he did not reveal it. But Hanoi over its radio in effect rejected the second plan.

But the United States accepted it, with a reservation suggesting that instead of just calling for a truce and then negotiating the two sides should discuss a truce first and then continue talking after it was established.

The Johnson administration isn't saying so, but Thant looked naive in suggesting that a truce, in such a mixed-up and scattered jungle war as this one, could be established by simply calling for it instead of discussing it first and laying down rules for it.

Although the United States accepted in general but Hanoi apparently rejected, Thant then added some second thoughts over the weekend.

Now he is saying he considers a halt in U.S. bombing a "prerequisite" to other peace steps he suggested, although he didn't say that when he first offered his second plan. That had been the first step in his first plan.

He wants the United States to declare a truce and "thereafter fire only if fired upon."

That could turn into a ludicrous truce: If the United States stopped shooting — without any agreement beforehand with North Vietnam — and the enemy started to shoot, and the United States fired back, and the enemy continued firing, and the United States did likewise, there would be no truce.

He said an end to the bombing, as a preliminary to other peace steps, must "be accompanied by a general understanding on a standstill truce. Supervision of the truce in the present circumstances is impractical."

But how can a general understanding of a truce be achieved — and there would have to be some understanding if there was no supervision — unless there are discussions between the United States and Hanoi before a truce?

The only thing clear about what Thant is saying is that it isn't clear.

SINATRA TO TOUR

Printers in New York Still Out

NEW YORK (AP) — The printers union is continuing to stage a series of work stoppages at the New York Daily News and the top mediator in the newspaper industry contract negotiations has called the situation "very tense."

The Daily News printers have called 14 work stoppages — ranging up to four hours — since contracts between 10 unions and five of the city's major newspapers expired Thursday midnight.

The 13th shutdown of operations in the composing room for union local meetings lasted from midnight to 2 a.m. today.

Editorial employees said the late editions of the morning newspaper were published on schedule. The main effect of the stoppage was to limit the amount of changes made to keep up with news developments, they said.

Another work stoppage meeting was called for today.

The announced purpose of the meetings is to keep the printers posted on the progress of negotiations.

5 Subpoenaed in Legislative Bribe Probe

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Five persons, including three former state representatives, have been subpoenaed and are to appear before the Pulaski County Grand Jury this morning.

The former legislators and two newsmen will be questioned in connection with the grand jury's investigation of reports of bribe offers allegedly made to legislators.

Those subpoenaed include former state representatives Paul Van Dalsem of Perryville, Glenn F. Walther of Little Rock and Ben Bynum of Dermott. The newsmen were identified as Robert Shaw of the Associated Press and Jack Baker of the Arkansas Gazette.

Troop Cutback Won't Satisfy the Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. withdrawal of 18,000 troops from Europe isn't expected to satisfy Senate pressure for even larger troop reductions.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced the cutback at a news conference Monday, saying it was in conjunction with President Charles de Gaulle's withdrawal of France from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's military alliance.

McNamara said the troops—16,000 in France and 2,000 in Germany—have been returned to the United States, along with 21,000 military dependents.

But that total fell far short of Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield's pending resolution calling for reducing U.S. combat forces in Europe from six to two divisions.

Mansfield, whose resolution has the backing of 46 other senators, claims large-scale forces no longer are needed in Europe, since the U.S. relies principally on its nuclear arsenal as a deterrent to aggression. The Pentagon said Monday 225,000 American troops remain in Europe. Many are in special service detachments rather than in combat divisions.

McNamara said he plans to meet here later this week with the new NATO nuclear planning group, composed of seven NATO nations. Topping the agenda, he said, would be U.S.-Soviet talks on limiting the arms race.

Clubman Pleads Not Guilty

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Barney Levine, owner of the Westwood Club, pleaded not guilty in circuit court Monday to charges of operating the club as a gambling house.

The Westwood Club is located near Little Rock. The club was padlocked last month after a reporter testified he had witnessed a dice game and a blackjack game at the club. Levine, who was not represented by a lawyer, waived a jury trial. Circuit Judge William Kirby scheduled a nonjury trial for Levine June 21.

Arkansas Returns to Compulsory Auto Inspection.

Among last-minute laws enacted by the Arkansas legislature — last Thursday, one day before adjournment — was Rockefeller-sponsored SB 261 to require compulsory inspection of motor vehicles. So compulsory inspection returns to our state after a lapse of nearly 30 years.

Governor Carl E. Bailey (1937-41) rammed an inspection law through the legislature, and while there was heavy support for it there was also a highly vocal opposition — and the law was shortly repealed.

The 1967 law was enacted under direct pressure by the federal government on both Governor Rockefeller and the General Assembly. Arkansas had either to adopt compulsory inspection or risk losing 4½ million dollars annually in federal highway aid. I agree with the results but dislike the tactics. Nevertheless, Arkansas had been dragging its feet on the question of highway safety and if we found our hand forced in 1967 it's something we asked for.

Responsibility for auto inspection will rest with the state police, who will license local testing stations throughout Arkansas. Testing of new cars and old ones transferred from one owner to another will begin Jan. 1, 1968, but testing presently-owned autos will be delayed until Jan. 1, 1969.

Safety features to be inspected are: Brakes, lights, turn signals, steering, horn, glass, mirrors, exhaust, windshield wipers, and tires.

Annual inspection fee for passenger cars and small trucks will be $1.75, with fees for trucks of four tons gross weight or more to be announced later. Their maximum is $17.50.

Wortham Will Not Arrive Home Today

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Buel Ray Wortham of North Little Rock will not be home today as expected. Wortham's mother, Mrs. Buel C. Wortham, said Monday her son would return home Wednesday.

Mrs. Wortham had said Sunday her son would be home today. She said he called her Monday and told her he of the 18th District, . . . to a rep-luncheon today in New York.

Wortham recently won an appeal of a three-year Soviet Court labor camp sentence. He arrived in New York Saturday after being fined $5,555 by the Soviet Supreme Court.

He was convicted in Lenin-grad of theft and Soviet cur-rency violations and sentenced to three years in a labor camp. Wortham was released on bail main as a member of that and then the Soviet Supreme Court reduced his sentence to a fine.

Attorneys in Coppolino Case Clash

By DON NORTH
NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey and the prosecution have engaged in sharp clashes in selecting a jury for the Carl Coppolino murder case.

In his first questioning of jury candidates Monday, Bailey seemed intent on seating a panel willing to try Coppolino for one murder—not two.

Bailey dug in his grilling of prospective jurors for any opinions they might hold as a result of Coppolino's acquittal in December on a first-degree murder charge in Freehold, N.J.

The slender, 34-year-old anesthesiologist was found innocent of the 1963 murder of a former neighbor, retired Army Col. William E. Farber.

Coppolino is charged with killing his first wife, Carmela, Aug. 26, 1965, with an injection of succinylcholine chloride, a drug which can cause fatal paralysis.

Bailey asked each juror: "Do you accept the fact that he did not commit murder in New Jersey?"

The question prompted a vigorous exchange with State Atty. Frank Schaub who claimed loudly that the New Jersey verdict meant only that there was insufficient evidence for conviction.

Showdown in Powell Case Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — A possible showdown moves nearer on the key constitutional issue of separation of powers.

Attorneys argue in U.S. District Court today whether the judicial branch has jurisdiction over House exclusion of Adam Clayton Powell from Congress.

Powell seeks an injunction against enforcement of the House resolution excluding him. It would permit immediate seating of the Harlem Democrat.

But first, Judge George L. Hart Jr. must hear oral arguments on two procedural questions:

— Powell's request for a special three-judge District Court panel to hear the case. Any appeal from a decision of such a panel would go to the Supreme Court, bypassing the U.S. Court of Appeals.

— The House contention that under the separation of powers principle of the Constitution, the court has no authority to consider the case.

The House excluded Powell March 1 after an investigative committee found he diverted government funds to personal use as chairman of the Education and Labor Committee. The committee also found Powell guilty of "gross misconduct."

Powell's attorneys filed suit March 9 in an attempt to force the House to seat him.

They charged that Powell's constitutional rights had been violated, asked a preliminary injunction so that Powell could take his seat immediately, and a permanent injunction restraining House Speaker John W. McCormack from refusing to administer the oath of office to him. They requested that a three-judge panel be convened to hear the case as soon as possible.

Powell's suit said he met the Constitution's congressional membership requirements of age, citizenship and residency.

The suit said refusal of the House to seat Powell "despite its own findings and conclusion that he possesses all the requisite constitutional qualifications" therefore is a gross violation of the basic rights of the electors.

The House, in its answer to the suit, said the U.S. District Court has no authority to decide labor camp sentence. He arrived in New York Saturday after being fined $5,555 by the Soviet Supreme Court.

He was convicted in Lenin-grad of theft and Soviet cur-rency violations and sentenced to three years in a labor camp. Wortham was released on bail main as a member of that and then the Soviet Supreme Court reduced his sentence to a fine.

The Constitution "empowers each house of Congress to determine, under standards and rules within its discretion, whether any particular person shall be allowed to enter or re-enter the House as a member of that house," the reply briefs said.

The House brief denied specifically Powell's principal contention that age, citizenship and residence are the exclusive qualifications for House membership.

McNamara Has Ignored All Pressure to Bomb Viet Cong Airfields

Wants Some Legislative Reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara indicates the administration will ignore congressional pressure for bombing of major airfields in North Vietnam—at least for the present.

McNamara's comments Monday implied no major escalation of the air war, aside from possible increased bomb tonnage, although he clearly left the door open for future U.S. air attacks on airfields used by Soviet-built MIG fighter-interceptors.

Assaults on these fields and certain North Vietnamese industries have been urged by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., the Senate Preparedness subcommittee and others.

McNamara seemed to answer these demands at a news conference by declaring "we think the present tactics are best suited" for achieving administration goals.

He said the administration seeks to achieve limited political objectives with the fewest losses of American lives, while avoiding widening the war.

As for the Communist fields, which send up Soviet-made fighters against U.S. planes, McNamara said: "We think that at least under present circumstances—and this belief can change as time goes by . . . the loss in U.S. lives will be less if we pursue our present target policy than they would be if we were to attack those airfields."

While McNamara was discussing U.S. policy on bombing, the Preparedness subcommittee reported high rates of desertion by South Vietnamese troops and an increase in enemy forces, despite heavy casualties inflicted in the last year.

The Defense Department conceded South Vietnamese desertions were "slightly over 116,000" last year, but said the desertion rate declined in the last half of 1966 and "the marked downward trend is continuing."

Post Office Head Would Abolish Job

By JOHN W. BECKLER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien wants his job abolished and the trouble-ridden postal system placed under a nonprofit government corporation.

O'Brien, who said last month the Post Office Department was in a race with catastrophe, would like to turn his track shoes over to a professional executive heading a corporate-like government agency.

The plan, disclosed Monday at a meeting of the Magazine Publishers Association, caught Congress and the postal employee organizations by surprise. Only cautious comments were forthcoming.

"He's shown us a nice picture of a house, but before we make a down payment I want to see the blueprints," said E. C. Hallbeck, head of the United Federation of Postal Clerks.

O'Brien gave few details in his talk and department officers were just as skippy with them but it appeared he had something like the Tennessee Valley Authority in mind for the postal operation. A board of directors appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate would select a management expert to run the system.

Where that would leave Congress, which now acts as the board of directors, was not clear. It is certain to take a long, hard look at the proposal.

The Post Office Department has been operating in pretty much the same way since Andrew Jackson's administration in 1829. A tradition that old is hard to change.

However, O'Brien, a confident, capable Irishman used to success, seems determined to revamp the department. Even if his public corporation plan falls through, he has a major modernization program under way and is studying several plans that call for voluntary efforts by business and individuals to ease the mailman's load.

One possibility would be to have secretaries in some areas pick up the office mail on their way to work.

Other studies are looking at the possibility of requiring standardized envelope sizes and using chartered cargo planes exclusively for mail.

The search for a better way to deliver the mail is something new for the Post Office, which has generally tried to solve its problems with more money and more people. Now employment is up to 700,000 and the budget to $6.3 billion while the problems are worse than ever.

The legislature created the Turnpike Authority this year to develop a system of toll roads in the state.

Plane Losses in Two Years 500, Pilots 390, Investment $1 Billion

SAIGON (AP) — After two years and two months of air war against North Vietnam, the cost to the United States stood today at 500 planes lost and up to 390 fliers killed, captured or missing—an investment of at least $1 billion.

Official figures place the confirmed number of airmen in Communist captivity between 120 and 140. The number missing is between 200 and 250. Many of these must be presumed dead.

The cost of training and equipping 390 fliers runs to more than $300 million. The average flier in Vietnam, according to Air Force statistics, has eight years of flying experience with 1,600 hours in the air. The cost to train and equip each one figures out at $773,000.

Added to these costs, the U.S. air offensive has expended an average of 50,000 tons of bombs, rockets and missiles each month. This is close to the rate of airborne ammunition expended in World War II and three times the rate of the Korean War. One Pentagon estimate places the cost of munitions at $2,000 a minute, around the clock.

Bitter argument rages in the United States and many other places over whether to increase the bombings or call a halt. In recent weeks, the bombings have been intensified—with the approval, if not on the direct order of President Johnson.

U.S. fighter-bombers have lately begun striking at North Vietnam's industrial heartland around Hanoi, pounding such previously immune targets as steel and power plants.

Only last week, American planes attacked a surface-to-air missile site and other targets within five and six miles of Hanoi, North Vietnam's principal port, which is protected by a 10-mile radius in which targets may not be hit except with approval from Washington.

With flying weather due to improve this month, the raids are expected to be intensified, and the cost in men and money will increase.

There is talk that U.S. pilots soon may go after the so far untouched MIG airfields clustered around Hanoi and try to wipe out North Vietnam's small air force of about 100 MIG interceptors.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Monday ruled out U.S. attacks on the MIG airfields for the present time at least but said this policy could change.

U.S. Keeps Up Heavy Bombing

By PETER ARNETT
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. war planes hammered North Vietnam Monday with the heaviest raids in five months as a spokesman disclosed the loss of the 600th American plane over the Communist North in two years and two months of bombing.

Air Force, Navy and Marine aircraft flying under the best weather conditions in weeks blasted storage areas, bridges, trucks and cargo barges in 147 missions. It was the heaviest attack since Nov. 4, when 155 missions were flown.

The 500th plane lost over North Vietnam was downed Sunday and the pilot was listed as missing in action. So far, about 390 American fliers have been killed, captured or are missing over North Vietnam.

A U.S. spokesman reported that most of Monday's raids were in the southern end of North Vietnam, with some Air Force and Navy aircraft slashing at targets in the Red River delta.

The aerial onslaught was supported by five 7th Fleet warships that hammered coastal targets in North Vietnam, particularly coastal defense sites and supply craft.

The ground war in South Vietnam slowed down, with few enemy contacts reported. A U.S. Army adviser, four South Vietnamese soldiers and 30 Vietnamese civilians were reported wounded when a U.S. Air Force strike against a Viet Cong force missed the target in Quang Ngai Province Monday.

A spokesman said the bombing mistake was under investigation.

Improving weather and an apparent decision to step up the raids against the Communist North resulted in the heavy raids Monday, informed U.S. sources said.

The highest number of missions previously flown this year was 128 on March 12. The war's record day was last Oct. 14, when 175 missions were flown, but this is expected to be topped later in April when cloudless skies should prevail over North Vietnam.

U.S. Navy A4 Skyhawks, F8 Crusaders and propeller-driven Skyraiders from the carriers Enterprise and Hancock flew 78 of Monday's missions. Two storage bunkers were reported destroyed southeast of Dong Hoi; a cloud of smoke was seen after a petroleum storage area was hit south of Vinh, and eight out of ten supply boats off Thanh Hoa were sunk.

U.S. Air Force F4C Phantom and 105 Thunderchief jets flying from bases in Thailand flew 55 missions, concentrating on military storage areas and trucks in the vicinity of Dien Bien Phu and Dong Hoi. The U.S. Marine Corps contributed 14 missions in the southern Panhandle.

Argentina Is Building Military

By JOSE M. ORLANDO
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentines last year dubbed their military regime "the armored turtle." Now an economic drive aims to put wheels under it.

The program is designed to push Argentina toward free enterprise. Some people think it could make or break the nine-month regime of Gen. Juan Carlos Onganía.

The "turtle" tag was a leftover from the civilian regime of President Arturo Illia, which Onganía toppled with a military coup last June 28.

Argentines had called the Illia government "the turtle" because they claimed it moved too slowly and did little. When Onganía brought the military to power and didn't take quick, visible action in the economic field the tag became "the armored turtle."

Onganía devoted the first months in office to securing his political grip. This included breaking down opposition from labor unions.

The General Federation of Labor — CGT — with some 2.5 million members, had wielded vast political power ever since Juan D. Peron built it into the backbone of his nine-year reign.

The CGT launched strikes and demonstrations against the Onganía regime after a brief wait-and-see interlude. It claimed the government plans would lead to massive unemployment.

President Onganía cracked down hard. He punished over 200,000 workers from state enterprises for joining in strikes. The penalties included suspensions and downgrading workers to lesser jobs.

The government, backed by the army, suspended the legal and labor rights of half a dozen big unions and froze funds of both the unions and their leaders.

The CGT bowed and called off a much heralded "plan of struggle."

The government also dissolved political parties and banned politics indefinitely. It made known that Onganía plans to rule for around 10 years.

"This is a government of aims, not of deadlines," Onganía said.

The CGT's backtracking last month wiped out the last pocket of political resistance.

It left Onganía with a free hand to turn to economic troubles.

Three months ago the general got rid of his first economics minister, Jorge N. Salimei, who was sharply criticized in many quarters.

Legislature Was Mostly Independent

By ROBERT L. SHAW
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The legislature that convened Jan. 9 was the most independent General Assembly in recent memory.

The Old Guard had suffered a reduction in numbers, the Democratic Party leadership was in disarray and the House had 44 freshmen, the Senate 10 and both chambers were more representative of urban areas.

Combined with a governor who had been talking change, the legislature was expected to confront a raft of reform legislation.

It did, and passed some of it, including measures that could have far-reaching effects. To the dismay of those who had hoped for more, the assembly rejected a number of other reform bills.

The plum, according to Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, was the creation of a Department of Administration, which the governor said would make government operations more efficient, and a personnel division within the department that eventually would lead to a broad state merit system.

The House and Senate also created a governmental efficiency study commission.

The legislature beat down attempts for an immediate call for a constitutional convention, but approved a bill creating a constitutional revision study commission that is to report its findings within a year. This is the approach Rockefeller favored.

Measures were enacted to reform the prison system after the governor's release of a State Police report of its investigation in which Tucker Prison inmates told of beatings, extortion, torture and illicit traffic in liquor, narcotics and selling of prison jobs.

A legislative committee investigated and its recommendations were enacted into law. The legislature also established a blue-ribbon commission to make a broader study and recommendations.

The legislature also offered the voters a chance to enact reforms. It approved a constitutional amendment to be placed on the 1968 general election ballot that would remove the judicial functions of county judges, but rejected another proposal for broader county reform, including permitting the county manager form of gov-

The other two proposed amendments approved by the legislature would permit public school kindergartens and allow the assembly to propose up to eight constitutional amendments in a general election.

The assembly did not vote on proposed amendments that would limit the term of the governor, although they were introduced as the result of a clamor for such a limitation following the six terms served by Gov. Orval Faubus.

One of the more controversial bills that was defeated in the House, but whose chances were poor to begin with, was a measure by Rep. Gladys Martin Oglesby of Stamps to abolish the death penalty.

The legislature also failed to enact legislation reforming the state's four training schools, setting a $1-an-hour minimum wage that would have progressed to $1.20 an hour in two steps, providing a "jury wheel" random selection of jury panels, requiring competitive bond bids and abolishing the fair trade liquor law.

In addition, bills calling for independent audits of the state Highway Department and Game and Fish Commission were killed in committee.

Q—Are icebergs formed of salt or fresh water?

A—Icebergs are always fresh-water ice.

Q—What is the meaning of the initials INRI seen at the top of the cross in pictures of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ?

W. Germany Starts a New Policy

By CARL HARTMAN
BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German government has begun a new policy of not being beastly to the Communist rulers of 17 million Germans east of the Elbe River.

It remains to be seen whether the policy will pay off.

The new Bonn government has no more affection than its predecessors had for Communist leader Walter Ulbricht. His Lenin-like beard, his Stalin-like policy and his responsibility for the Berlin wall have long made him the man West German politicians love to hate.

"It's not a question of being nice to people who aren't so nice themselves," explained Willy Brandt, the foreign minister. But Chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger's men believe that the way to reunify Germany is to be friendlier with the Communist powers that have so far prevented it. There has been a lot of political double talk in recent speeches, however.

One West German editorialist spoke of "beating around the bush." Editors of the news weekly Der Spiegel accused Kiesinger in an interview of giving a "sphinx-like" answer on the issue. "You have to keep a lot of options open in politics," Kiesinger replied.

One editor suggested that a majority of legislators secretly favor official recognition of Ulbricht's government and of its border with Poland. These are major Communist demands on West Germany, and many West Germans would consider it treasonable to yield.

Kiesinger denied any such majority exists.

Kiesinger offers some concessions to Ulbricht's government. One that does not sound like much, but which carries a heavy emotional charge in Germany, is the fact that he sometimes refers to it as the DDR. These are the initials for German (Deutsche) Democratic Republic, its official title.

A few months ago anyone who used those initials without quotation marks ran the risk of being called a Communist or fellow traveler.

The official initials recognized in Bonn are SBZ for Soviet Occupied Zone. The expression raises the hackles of East Germans, Communist or not.

Both Kiesinger and Brandt have backed away from the claim of previous Bonn governments to "the exclusive right of representation" for all Germans in world affairs. Brandt said at one news conference that this was not a right but a simple duty to speak up for those who had no freely elected government to speak for them.

Ulbricht has been traveling around Eastern Europe, trying to dissuade other Communist governments from following Romania in setting up diplomatic relations with Bonn. His government has created a new East German citizenship, offensive to West Germans who believe that all Germans should have the same citizenship.

Coppolino Murder Case Underway

By DON NORTH
NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Whether a drug could be detected a year after death may be the crux of Dr. Carl Coppolino's murder trial starting today.

Choice of a jury — expected to be exhaustive — was the first order of business. The anesthesiologist is charged with first degree murder in the death of his first wife.

Defense Attorney F. Lee Bailey and prosecutor Frank Schaub have 69 prospective jurors to choose from in selecting a panel of 12 plus two alternates.

The case was shifted from Sarasota, where Carmela Coppolino, 32, died in her bed Aug. 28, 1965, after the defense and prosecution agreed that news coverage of the case made it unlikely that an unbiased jury could be seated there.

The trial will be the second in four months for Coppolino, 34, on a first-degree murder charge. He was acquitted in Freehold, N.J., last December in the 1963 slaying of William Farber, a former neighbor. Bailey also was the defense attorney there.

Indictments in the two states followed a statement to Sarasota authorities by Farber's widow, Marjorie, 52, that she was suspicious of the causes of both deaths.

The bodies were exhumed for autopsy.

A grand jury charged that Coppolino murdered his wife with an injection of a drug — succinylcholine chloride — which paralyzed then killed her. Coppolino has pleaded innocent.

Mrs. Farber, who moved to Sarasota near the Coppolinos after her husband's death, testified in New Jersey that she and Coppolino had been lovers.

She went to authorities soon after Coppolino took as his second wife a wealthy divorcee, Mary Williams Gibson, 39, within two months of Carmela's death.

Defense and prosecution will seek medical testimony of experts as to the presence of the drug in Carmela's body and whether it could be detected after death.

Schaub intends to call as witnesses Mrs. Farber and Dr. Milton Helpert, chief medical examiner for New York City who examined body parts of the victim.

AN OLD VETERAN in Washington, Sen. Carl Hayden, 89, of Arizona has served in Congress longer than any other person in the history of the United States. He was a U.S. Representative from 1912 to 1927, and has served in the Senate since 1927. He is shown here with Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall after being honored recently for more than half a century of work in forest conservation.

Bailey, 33, is expected to call experts to testify as to the use of a radioactive method of tracing the drug by counting carbon 14 in the victim's system.

Judge Lynn Silverthorn has banned newsmen's cameras near the court building and closed the courtroom to artists and tape recorders. The 34 accredited reporters may not leave or enter the 108-seat courtroom except at recess.

Jurors will be sequestered in a motel without television, radio or newspapers. Principals in the trial are prohibited from talking to newsmen.

CEILING ON SALARY
NEW YORK (AP) — David Burns of "Hello, Dolly!" has a contract which bars him from asking for a raise.

The unusual clause resulted because Burns dislikes signing a work pact for longer than a year. Producer David Merrick felt the actor wouldn't sign a two-year contract just to be able to bargain for more pay. The comic said he wouldn't do any such thing and signed a contract so stipulating.

Rockefeller, Bride on Honeymoon

By MARGARET SCHERF
CHICAGO (AP) — Sharon

Percy and John D. Rockefeller IV were on their honeymoon today — after a wedding of pomp, pageantry and publicity.

The ceremony Saturday at the University of Chicago's Rockefeller Chapel united Sharon, 22, the daughter of Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Rockefeller, 29, a Democratic West Virginia state legislator.

The bridal couple finally stepped out of the spotlight late Saturday when they stepped into the private plane of the bridegroom's uncle, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas, a Republican.

They had decided to continue with their plans to honeymoon in the Far East despite the death hours before their wedding of Sharon's step-grandmother Emily Guyer, Mrs. Percy's mother.

A spokesman for the Percy family said the newlyweds had not decided at the time of their departure if they would attend the funeral today at Altadena, Calif.

When the couple reaches their honeymoon destination, Rockefeller will be an able guide. He attended International Christian University in Tokyo for three years and was an instructor in the English language there for a year. Later he served in the State Department bureau of Far Eastern affairs.

Although Sharon has not been to the Orient, she attended the Brilliantmont School in Lausanne, Switzerland, her junior year in high school and spent two months last summer with the Experiment in International Living in the Central African Republic.

The unexpected death of her grandmother was a last-minute addition to a burden of grief Sharon bore on her wedding day. Her twin sister, Valerie, probably would have been her maid of honor had she not been murdered less than eight months ago by an intruder in the Percys' suburban Kenilworth home.

Instead, Sharon's 13-year-old sister, Gail, served as a maid of honor.

A friend close to the family said before the wedding: "The family expected to be criticized for having this wedding so soon after Valerie's death. And they have. Sharon has even had threatening phone calls from screwballs. But the Percys felt that a young girl is entitled to the kind of wedding she always dreamed of, and they feel quite certain it is what Valerie would want."

Among the guests at a reception following the wedding were President Johnson's daughter, Lynda Bird, actors George Hamilton and Maurice Chevalier, New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, Michigan Gov. George Romney and a host of Rockefeller's.

KAYE BACK IN A PLAY

LONDON (AP) — Comedian Danny Kaye is to appear at the Chichester Drama Festival during August in "The Servant of Two Masters."

The Carlo Goldoni 18th Century comedy returns Kaye to stage theatricals for the first time since 1941 when he appeared on Broadway in "Let's Face It." If successful, the production directed by Peter Cox is to be presented subsequently here in the West End and then in New York.

1965: USAC-supervised tests proved that a '65 Ford rode quieter than a $17,000 Rolls-Royce.

1966: After comparison rides, owners of the world's most expensive luxury cars like Jaguar and Mercedes-Benz agreed that a '66 Ford was quieter.

1967: At the Lake Placid Olympic ski jump a '67 Ford took leap after punishing leap and rode away still quiet, still strong. Other '67 Fords went on a bone-jarring steep-chase ride and a grueling trip up and down the Los Angeles Coliseum steps. The results were always the same: still quiet, still strong.

Year after year, you're ahead in a Ford — ahead in quiet, ahead in strength.

Year after year, we do things you'd never do to demonstrate Ford's quiet and strength. This year's tests were the toughest yet. But the durable Ford came through again — quiet and strong. That's because the 1967 Ford is the strongest, quietest Ford we've ever built. Over 150 important parts have been strengthened and improved. And the '67s offer plenty of convenience and luxury features too. SelectShift Cruise-O-Matic transmission that's fully automatic and fully manual. It all adds up to a pretty strong argument for saving at your Ford Dealer's now. Quieter because it's stronger... stronger because it's better built.

1936 Arkansas Centennial Edition to Be Re-Issued in Offset Process

Hope Star's Arkansas Centennial Edition of June 26, 1936 — declared by the head librarian of the Alamo to be the best Centennial Edition issued by any newspaper either in Arkansas or Texas that year — is still cherished by historians and the public, but the edition has been out of print for 30 years.

Now the miracle of Offset Printing permits us to reproduce it at a microscopic fraction of its original cost which was $1,700.

The Star's editor conceived the idea of photographing the old paper and including it in the daily Star one page at a time until all 48 pages had been reprinted. Mechanical Superintendent Billy Dan Jones improved on the idea — photograph the front and back side of each page and insert it two pages at a time in our daily run. That's what we are going to do.

So all you have to do as a Hope Star subscriber is to save the 24 2-page inserts over the next few months, staple them together — and you'll have the reconstructed Arkansas Centennial Edition of 48 pages without any cost other than your regular subscription.

As late as 15 months ago this would have been impossible without resetting the entire Centennial in type and re-engraving all its picture, which if it cost $1,700 back in 1936, would run $4,000 or $5,000 today.

But with the Offset Process all we have to do is photograph the old paper with our giant process camera, make a press plate for the extra two pages, and include them in our daily run.

Look for this miracle in the months to come!
